PART I — YOUR TERMINATION RIGHTS EXPLAINED

1.1 When You May Terminate

1.2 What Happens After You Terminate

Upon submission of this signed Notice, the following effects occur automatically in accordance with the Agreement:

- All licenses granted to you under the Agreement terminate immediately upon expiry of the notice period.
- You retain full ownership of any physical prototypes, equipment, and Improvements you independently developed.
- Licensor retains a perpetual, royalty-free license to use any Improvements you developed — this obligation survives termination.
- Any accrued payment obligations up to the termination date remain due and payable.
- Confidentiality obligations continue for their specified term (5 years for Antimatter Agreement; 10 years for HST Agreement).
- You face no penalty, fee, or liability to Licensor solely as a consequence of exercising this termination right.

1.3 What You Keep

Termination does not affect your ownership of:

- Physical prototypes, test equipment, and laboratory apparatus created during the Development Phase.
- All Improvements and innovations you independently developed, including patents filed thereon.
- Funding, partnerships, or business relationships established during the Development Phase.
- Internal know-how, operational processes, and personnel expertise developed independently.
